Journey down the world's largest river to wilderness and wild-life. Imagine, you in the Amazon jungle—off the tourist trodden path. The Amazon: land of beauty and drama, our planet's biodiversity hotspot. The mighty Amazon River is the life-blood of this unique ecosystem.

Towering trees rise above a riot of vegetation. Orchids, ferns, lichens and moss encrust branches in profusion—the world's most diverse flora. Lily and acacia scents waft on the breeze.

There is an air of expectation.

Lush jungle growth supports an abundance of animals. Parrots squawk, monkeys chatter, insects buzz. A tapir grazes peacefully but keeps a wary eye open for the jaguar—a never-ending battle between life and death. A vulture lazily circles high in the sky.

This is rainforest. This is wilderness.

On your Jungle Wanders adventure, a seven day riverboat cruise takes you through pristine jungle. With daily guided walks and launch rides your itinerary is designed so you get the best wilderness experience.

Explore untamed jungle to experience nature up close. Nature-lovers and photographers will be enthralled. Meet local people who live in jungle settlements and native villages for insight into the way of life here.

Roger Harris, author of the leading travel guide to the Amazon rainforest, leads this trip. He will be available throughout the trip for your questions. His knowledge of Amazon natural history and people will make your trip personal, memorable and rewarding!

Your journey

"Buenos dias!" (= greetings) Your adventure is in the Peruvian Amazon. The river journey is from Iquitos, Peru to Leticia, Colombia and back, a round-trip distance of 650 miles (map on p. 3). The Amazon is remote but well worth the effort. You literally 'get away from it all'! You depart from the US and fly via Lima, Peru for Iquitos. This is a city of glories past, built during the rubber boom of the late 1800's.

No roads or railways connect Iquitos to the outside world. The river is the highway of this region.

You are in 'The Emerald Forest' on the world's largest river. The legend comes alive. Adventure beckons...

The adventure continues...

Upon arrival in Iquitos, you depart the airport for the riverfront. At the dock, board the Rio Amazonas, a tourist standard local river boat. It's your home for the next seven days!

The three-decked vessel has an open lounge area on the top deck. Your cabins are basic but comfortable and clean with twin beds and private bathrooms and showers. Food is simple, healthy and nutritious. Served as a buffet, it is best described as Amazon "ranch style." All meals are aboard. The ship has a small souvenir shop. The ship's bar is open early until late. :)

Luggage is sorted out, cabins are assigned and after orientation you have time to take in the scenery as it passes by. Relax on the sun deck with a drink from the bar.

During the voyage, the ship winds its way among the labyrinth of islands and sand-bars along the river's main stream fed by innumerable streams and tributaries.

You enjoy at least two or three excursions each day, including visits to Indian villages, exploring forest nature trails and canoe trips to explore remote tributaries and quiet lakes.

Unwind and relax, admiring the scenery—endless rain forest in constant competition with the powerful river. Raw nature is here. Wildlife thrives. River animals include freshwater dolphins, piranha and the rare manatee.

Birdwatchers will want to look for birds such as kingfishers, herons, terns and other birds that favor riverside habitat—orioles, flycatchers, hawks and kites. Perched among vegetation lining the river's edge, kingfishers and herons patiently wait for a meal to swim by.

The tropical waters teem with fish, such as the infamous piranha, but many species are unknown to science. You will have several opportunities to spot the pink dolphin. Go on a special excursion to see the Victoria Water Lily, biggest in the world, with pads up to six feet across!

Up in the broad crowns of giant trees epiphytes and animals thrive. The Amazon rain forest is home to half of the world's species and mostly in the canopy. At least eighty per cent or more of canopy insect species are unknown to science!

In the rain forest, a variety of mammals browse the plants or root in the ground: the pig-like peccary, tapir and large rodents such as agouti and paca. With ancient instinct, jaguar stalk the prey. Scavengers—notably the black vulture—squabble over the remains.

A butterfly threads its way through shaded glades and over hidden streams. Broad marshes, winding rivers and grassy wetlands are a haven for water-birds. Many rare bird species are found in rain forest. You might catch a glimpse of the harpy eagle, the world's most powerful raptor. Here is nature at its most vibrant.

This area was first visited by Europeans in 1541 by famous Spanish conquistador Francisco de Orellana. Today it is much as he found it: an ocean of green roamed by strange and wondrous animals.

The people who met de Orellana are changed, though most river people live much as they have always done. On the voyage you visit native villages en route. You learn something of how tribal people hunt and fish, farm the jungle, gather wild plants and practice herbal medicine. Meet a native shaman and sample native beverages and wild-collected jungle fruits.

Jungle towns you visit such as Caballococha, San Pablo, and Pebas give insight into the dilemmas of development in the jungle. Here you will see mixing of native, Latin and Western cultures. Observe the ways in which the Indian people adapt to the modern world and how their language and way of life is being preserved.

The Rio Amazonas has a small selection of books to enhance your trip. Presentations by your guides on board and during excursions provide a special learning experience impossible from a TV show or lecture.

Safely back home!

All too soon, it is time to bid farewell to this masterpiece of nature—fragile and still vulnerable. You may leave the Amazon with more questions than when you arrived! On the Friday evening celebrate recent adventures. Enjoy a farewell dinner aboard. Next morning, back in Iquitos, you say "Adios amigos," to the Rio Amazonas, her crew and to new friends. Transfer to Iquitos airport for your non-stop flight to Lima. You arrive mid-afternoon. (See page 6 for choices of extensions to the itinerary for this trip.)

Trip itinerary

Rivers of Nature Amazon Adventure Cruise

March 15th to 23rd, 2008

Day 1: Saturday. March 15th. Fly from your U.S. home town to Lima, Peru. Upon arrival transfer to nearby hotel.

Day 2: Sunday am: check-in at Lima airport for non-stop flight to Iquitos. Arrive Iquitos mid-morning and transfer to the Rio Amazonas. Cabin assignment and lunch and dinner on board. Overnight on board for six nights

Day 3: Monday. Before breakfast, early bird watching. Later a visit to the Witoto Indian village. After a welcome dance, barter for crafts. Then visit the small town of Pebas. Boating expedition after supper aboard to experience the nighttime sounds of the rainforest—nature's symphony! Overnight aboard.

Day 4: Tuesday. After breakfast we take a boat trip along a small tributary to encounter morning bird life. A short jungle trail takes you to see the giant Victoria water lily. See birds flying over head, including parrots and toucans. Piranha fishing in the afternoon!

Day 5: Wednesday. Arrive early morning at "Tres Fronteras" where three frontiers of Peru, Colombia and Brazil meet at the Amazon River. Take a short ride across the river to Leticia. In the morning visit a museum, simple zoo and riverfront market in Tabatinga, Brazil. Lunch at the Hotel Anaconda in Leticia. Free time to relax by the hotel pool or shop on the main thoroughfare of this Amazon outpost. Native masks and other handicrafts are available. Mid-afternoon we depart upriver.

Day 6: Thursday. Morning wildlife excursion: trip by small launch up the Ataquari river to a small black water lagoon. In the afternoon, stop at San Pablo and visit the remote leper hospital, where patients sell handmade goods. A special excursion early evening up a tributary. Engines are shut down and the launch drifts downriver, as you listen to the unforgettable sounds of the rainforest at night... and maybe spot a caiman's eyes glowing in the dark. Supper and overnight aboard ship.

Day 7: Friday. Stop at a customs checkpoint and continue upriver to the Boras village where some of the best native crafts are made. After a tribal dance you have time to barter for or purchase handicrafts. Late afternoon launch ride to see the sunset over a beautiful lake.

Day 8: Saturday. After breakfast aboard disembark for Iquitos. Depart late morning and arrive Lima airport early afternoon. Overnight in Lima.

Day 9: Sunday. March 23rd. The flight to your home city in the U.S. will be in the morning or early afternoon.

NOTE: No activity is required or obligated for this trip. You can enjoy the itinerary at your own pace according to your interest. Travel to wilderness is not perfectly predictable. Please note that the daily schedule may be adjusted to meet current weather, water levels, plant and animal cycles and cultural events. Every effort will be made to provide the itinerary as described.

Accommodation & Transport

Accommodation is selected for quality, comfort and atmosphere. Your upper-deck cabin aboard the Rio Amazonas is clean (and mosquito-proof!) with comfy twin beds, private bathroom and shower, and A/C.

Your city hotel room is en suite, clean and comfortable, with A/C, TV and telephone.

Transport: We use the best available transport. The Rio Amazonas is a robust vessel with years of safe sailing around the Amazon. Launches and canoes are reliable and stable. Internal flights with Aerocontinente.

Jungle Wanders Amazon Cruise

Prepare for adventure

THINGS TO BRING: a jacket, a hat, sunglasses, sunscreen, flashlight and passport. US citizens do not need a visa for Peru. Binoculars for wildlife viewing and star-gazing.

WHAT TO WEAR: light cotton clothing and beach shoes are ideal for aboard ship and launch excursions. Bring stout shoes for nature trails (trainers are okay).

Take a rain jacket for wet or windy days and a sweater for cool nights. On jungle walks, long sleeved shirts and trousers keep off thorns and insects but can also make you too warm.

FOOD AND DRINK: is best described as Amazon 'ranch-style.' It is always served as a buffet. Menus are varied and suited to Western tastes, but you may try local dishes or delicacies. A specialty is freshly-caught dorado, a type of catfish. Peru grows plentiful farm produce and fruits so all your food is nutritious and tasty. Salad items are washed with treated water. Purified water, tea and coffee are available 24 hours in the dining room. All meals in Peru are provided.

LANGUAGE: is mainly Spanish but your local guide is English-speaking. The Indians speak their own tribal language, which will be demonstrated during your visit to their village.

CURRENCY: Nuevo sole (Ns3.1 = US$1). There are banks in Iquitos and Leticia only. Credit cards and travelers checks are accepted in many hotels and shops but not aboard ship or at Indian villages. It is a good idea to take US$50-150 in small bills.

HEALTH MATTERS: so bring sunscreen, moisturizer, chapstick and insect repellent. Avoid drinking tap or river water and iced beverages sold by street vendors. Eat only fruit that is peeled and meat only if it is well-cooked and hot from the kitchen. Purified water is available throughout. It is safe to swim in the river at locations indicated by your guide. No vaccinations are required but it is advisable to have a medical checkup before you leave. Some medicines are unavailable in remote areas where health care is basic. We are not medical professionals, but we know the area so if you have health concerns, please call our toll-free number to discuss them. We have lists of specialist tropical medicine doctors in your state.

SAFETY, SECURITY & POLITICS: not a problem in the Amazon, relatively crime-free and untroubled. Guests can relax in this safe region, which is relatively stable. Since a change of government in 1990, Peru's political problems with extremist groups are largely over and in any case these groups are not active in Amazonia. However, poor people anywhere can be tempted...

Please call our toll-free number if you have safety concerns.

ELECTRICITY: voltage in Peru and aboard ship is 220V and sockets are round 2-pin so bring an adapter for electrical equipment. Bring spare batteries for photo equipment and flashlight.

WEATHER: As this area is only three degrees south of the equator, temperatures do not vary widely. Your trip is timed for the best weather—temperatures average 90°F in March, when the days are sunny yet not too warm. Rainfall is unpredictable but usually lasts only an hour or two per day and should have a minimal effect on daily activities.

MORE INFORMATION: For more information about preparing for a trip to the Amazon, you will receive a signed copy of The Amazon: The Bradt Travel Guide, by Roger Harris and Peter Hutchison. (3rd edition, August 2007, $25.99) It's also available at good bookstores and online. Please visit the Travel Shop at junglewanders.com/shop for a selection of recommended travel products.

Travel insurance

Our trips have a 100% safety record but for your peace of mind and that of family staying home, we recommend you are insured for the trip. In particular trip cancellation insurance will cover you against unexpected events beyond your control. First check if your existing homeowners or medical policies cover you for travel abroad. If so, you do not need to buy insurance. For your convenience we offer a full travel insurance package (check the order box on the registration form). Please call toll-free about our insurance program or if you have any questions about coverage.

Your adventure guides

This trip is escorted from Lima by Roger Harris, lead author of the top travel guide book to the Amazon rainforest. Roger is a biologist, naturalist guide and writer.

Roger has led natural history and photography tours to the Girl with pet monkey, Pevas.

Amazon region since 1992. His exploits include two full-length voyages along the Amazon River including travels to Peru, Colombia, Brazil and Ecuador.

Roger's writing includes dozens of science, natural history and travel articles. In 2000, he created Jungle Photos, a top science and nature website to share his photos and his love of nature and wilderness. He has presented to more than a hundred tour groups, schools, and museums, and to corporate, cultural and civic organizations.

The Amazon: The Bradt Travel Guide by Roger Harris & Peter Hutchison (3rd edition 2007). Travel with the guy who "wrote the book!"

During this trip Roger's presentations will give you a broader context for your experiences: the science and natural history behind rainforest conservation, ecology and ethnology. His knowledge and expertise makes this a truly unique and special trip.

Your local guide aboard MV Rio Amazonas speaks English and is highly knowledgeable about the Amazon wildlife and local people. The guide will help you spot animals and unusual plants, and also answer questions on local customs.

Extensions

Get best value from your visit to South America and extend your Rivers of Nature Adventure.

Choose from among the following exciting possibilities include:

- Amazon Canopy Walkway — Experience life among the tree-tops
- Machu Picchu — Discover the Lost City of the Incas
- Tambopata Candamo Reserve — A Birder's Paradise
- Manu National Park — The Living Eden

Extension prices include airfares, accommodation, meals, excursions, local guides, etc. (Not included: meals, departure taxes, tips, bottled drinks, personal items.)

Rainforest Canopy Walkway

Stay in the Amazon to experience the only tropical rainforest canopy walkway in the Americas at the ACTS (Amazon Conservatory of Tropical Studies) field station and laboratory. The tree canopy walkway is the best way to get a feel for life in the canopy. More than 100 feet above the forest floor you come face-to-face with life's diversity.

The walkway and ACTS facility is reached by a 2 mile hike through the forest. The walk creates no problems for the moderately fit person.

Accommodation in the lodge adjacent to the walkway is basic but comfortable. Beds have mosquito nets. Washing and drinking water is available in jugs. Lighting is by paraffin lamp.

Everyone interested in nature will treasure discovering the outstanding birding, insect life and diversity of plants.

3 Days Canopy Walkway Extension US$625

Machu Picchu

Discover the 'riches' of the Inca. Highlight is a visit to Machu Picchu, the 'Lost City of the Incas.' Imagine, you in a place once only a legend among explorers!

Relive history on this 7 day trip. Sights and sounds of the ancient Inca seem to come to life. There is enchantment here. Carved boulders fit together perfectly, so precisely worked not even a piece of paper will fit in the spaces. The stones stand without mortar and have resisted earthquakes for centuries.

Highlights of include a tour of Cuzco—ancient Inca capital, nestled in the southern Peru Peruvian Andes. Shop for local handicrafts: silver jewelry and woolen goods. Visit the fortress and temple at Saqsaywaman, the shrine at K'engo and the villages of Tambomachay and Pukapukarea. Explore the stonework paths, passages, terraces and dwellings of Machu Picchu. Visit the Pillar of Sun and The Inca Bridge. Enjoy a bath at thermal springs. Wildlife viewing along the Urubamba river at the edge of tropical jungle. Train ride to and from Cuzco. Accommodations at the Royal Inca Hotel. Guided tour of Lima, including the Museo de la Nación.

9 Days Inca Riches Extension US$1995

Macaws of Tambopata

The nearest place to visit the Amazon from Cuzco is Bahuaja-National Park/Tambopata Reserve, which protect parts of the remote and pristine Madre de Dios region and the world's highest biodiversity.

This is one of the largest cross-border protected areas in Latin America at almost four million hectares. Highlights include the park's major attraction, the colpa or clay lick. This is one of nature's great spectacles. Hundreds of macaws and parrots gather to nibble on the clay cliffs.

Your trip includes flights from Lima or Cusco (if on Machu Picchu extension) and a visit to Tambopata Research Center. This simple 13-bedroom lodge is close by the clay lick. Tambopata Research Center is a resource for scientists and tourists to learn about Amazonian nature and wildlife. Buildings are traditional native style surrounded by pristine forest. Groups no larger than six are guided along trails. Besides the macaw clay lick, numerous macaw nesting sites are also nearby. Wildlife abounds with primates and larger mammals, and high bird diversity. This trip is perfect for bird-watchers, nature-lovers and photographers.

4 Days Tambopata Extension US$995 per person

Manu, Park of Eden

Manu is one of the planet's last great forest wildernesses, featured as a Living Eden in the PBS television series. On this trip, you experience the real thing. Manú was declared a National Park in 1973 and a World Biosphere Reserve and World Heritage Site in 1977. The protected area comprises 1.53 million hectares of diverse lowland and montane forest habitats around the headwaters of the River Manú. Here is the world's most diverse flora and fauna. Also in the park live indigenous groups that were not contacted until recently.

Wildlife commonly seen by visitors includes giant otter, black caiman, jaguar and ocelot. You are virtually guaranteed to see several of the 13 or more primate species. Manú is prized by ornithologists and the bird count has topped one thousand. There are several small macaw and parrot clay licks in the reserve.

4 Days Manu Extension US$1295 per person

About Jungle Wanders

Mission and Vision

Jungle Wanders' mission is to provide travel experiences of exceptional quality and value to tropical wilderness areas.

We aim to minimize environmental impact while providing outstanding adventure.

We inspire and educate our adventurers to encourage them to benefit local economies and global conservation.

Our purpose is to offer the best value adventure travel to our specialty destinations. You have time to explore well off the tourist-trodden path. Isolation and lack of attention by large tour companies make our destinations paradise for nature lovers, photographers or those who just want to "get away from it all."

We are a small company providing personalized service. Roger Harris is founder of Jungle Wanders. He's a biologist, author, and experienced leader of natural history and photography trips to unique tropical destinations. To learn more about Roger, check out his MySpace page (rjharris1).

To help preserve the Amazon's unique fauna and flora, and native peoples' way of life, Jungle Wanders contributes to local conservation organizations. We donate $50 for each paid-up client to support preservation of these areas. We strive to meet the standards established by The Ecotourism Society, the Wilderness Society, the Better Business Bureau and tour operator associations.

Environmental impact

Jungle Wanders trips minimize your carbon footprint and cultural impact, while facilities are comfortable and clean, although not luxurious. Therefore, travel and accommodations offered through Jungle Wanders are sensitive to local cultural and conservation needs.

For the same reasons, our policy is "quality not quantity." Hence, we offer only two personally-led Amazon trips in 2007. Due to limited availability, book early to ensure a place on the trip of your choice.

Today, much of the forest and river you'll visit is pristine. It must be kept that way. So we want to keep this part of the world beautiful and intact for future generations. Hence, to minimize environmental impact our trip admits only a few clients. A small group size also helps us give you more personalized service.

Learning experience

The travel programs also include presentations so that you learn about fragile natural treasures and get a feeling for these special places. Wander with us to experience the wonder of our natural world.

We provide you with high quality pre-trip information (once your deposit is paid). In this way you will return home having learned something about what you see and hear! Information includes what to expect and how to get the most out the trip. You can read up on ecology of the wildlife you will see and inform yourself on the conservation issues in the Amazon. You are given advice on ecologically sound practices in the rain forest—our prime directive is, "Take only photos, leave only footprints."

Aboard ship and at sites on nature walks, you can discuss, with both local guides and Roger Harris, local wildlife and conservation issues to enhance your awareness. In addition, Roger gives several educational presentations during your trip.

A Passion for Adventure, The Power to Discover

You learn about the fragile habitats of the Amazon while actually in the field. This way you better understand and appreciate the natural wonders and culture around you.

Outreach and education

In concert with our travel program Jungle Wanders offers educational programs to schools, museums, and to cultural and civic organizations. Presentations, demonstrations and workshops are provided free of charge to needful organizations.

Since 2000, our sister company Jungle Photos has provided a top-notch educational website featuring photographs and information from Jungle Wanders' destinations. Teachers, students and vicarious travelers have had hours of valuable learning fun exploring the website.

Through our outreach and education, we convey the wonder of our natural world to people who may never have the good fortune to enjoy these experiences for themselves. By traveling with Jungle Wanders you are helping to support these outreach efforts.

This trip

This Jungle Wanders' itinerary is based on Roger Harris' 15 years of travels around the Amazon. His familiarity with the region ensures you get the vacation you pay for. He personally leads the trip. Roger's extensive travels and university-level education in the natural sciences make him well-qualified to provide you with a unique and special journey.

We set the schedules for a relaxed itinerary. You have the chance for at least one walking and launch excursion each day, plus several opportunities for activities such as swimming and shopping at local markets.

There is lots of time for interest in wildlife, villages and scenic beauty. You're assured of close contact with nature and indigenous people, while staying safe and comfortable, and environmentally friendly.

Accommodations aboard the riverboat are simple and rustic, though always comfortable and clean. Your cabins and hotel rooms have private bathrooms. Your hotel in Lima is international standard.

FAQs

Still have questions or concerns? Please call toll-free if you would like more information. Thank you for your interest in adventure opportunities with Jungle Wanders. Happy travels!

About the Amazon

It's a river, a rainforest, a region and a legend. The reality? Vast tropical forests and endless labyrinths of rivers, lakes and marshes, abundant bird life and an awesome variety of insects—this is the majesty of the Amazon.

For the discerning few, the less well-known jewels of nature are an irresistible lure... The Amazon is renowned among naturalists. The areas you visit are of great scientific importance, home to a myriad unique species of wildlife living in a fragile ecosystem.

It is one of life's great experiences to explore this place for yourself. Realize your passion for adventure—discover the Amazon.
